ABOUT HURN COURT OPERA

Founded in 2017 under the leadership of Lynton Atkinson, tenor, conductor and Vocal Professor at Trinity Laban Conservatoire, Hurn Court Opera exists to provide quality – and, crucially, paid – performance opportunities to emerging young singers.

Through an exciting programme of recitals, opera, masterclasses and an annual national singing competition, Hurn Court Opera gives selected vocalists performance platforms and exposure to guidance from people at the top of the profession. At the same time, it gives local audiences the chance to enjoy professional opera and recitals showcasing this exceptional young talent.

Donors are an essential and valued part of Hurn Court Opera. Through their generosity, we can provide the performance opportunities that our young artists need and our audiences love.

Run by an unpaid staff, Hurn Court Opera receives no public funding. In common with many arts organisations, ticket income goes only part way to covering our costs. So, particularly in the current challenging climate, we are hugely grateful to our donors who help to fund this gap.

They share our belief that high-calibre vocal talent needs to be nurtured and given platforms from which to inspire audiences. They share our commitment to keep tickets affordable, to tempt young people with free or reduced-price entry and to perform in local venues.
